

It is at this precise moment that we emerge from our long Black Night and rush towards the stars. Alas, we make the mistake of heading towards the signals emanating from this planet, your neighbor of Tau Ceti. Our peaceful mission is considered aggression, our race being unknown and quite similar in appearance to that of the giant Lords of Orion. Our exploration ship is destroyed, along with its six occupants.

Faced with our incomprehension regarding this tragic event, these same friendly neighbors of HD 165341, recommended that we avoid a circular stellar zone of our sky, of several degrees of amplitude, centered on the star HD 693. From OOMO, your Earth appears within this exclusion zone. We strictly complied with this directive, thus avoiding any further serious conflict incidents and avoiding any visits to your solar system, until the year 1948. We have already detailed our interaction with you from this date.

At the same time, another tribe, quite enigmatic, but very sneaky, also appears in this galactic sector, taking advantage of the distress of a nascent civilization, also threatened by the hostile race, inhabiting a planet located around the star HD 2151, to which they offer help. This enigmatic and devious people are the ones you call the Grays. Openly opposed to the Lords of Orion, and avowed enemies of the hostile conquering race, although conquerors themselves, they were taking great steps towards peaceful colonization, as far as it could exist.

They obviously discovered Earth quite quickly. Your planet was already under the close and joint surveillance of several neighboring peoples, as it was also threatened by the hostile race. The Grays invoked their right to peaceful exploration using harmless ships, also offering protection because you were, on the eve of your nuclear age, a danger to yourselves.

In 1941, a first incident involving the Grays took place, causing material and human losses. unusual signals were detected by the Grays at Scott Air Force Base (Illinois), arousing their curiosity. A camouflaged (possibly Taurian) ship opens fire on the Grays' ship, first causing it to flee and then to crash. Indeed, the Gray vessel fled but crashed about 160 km further south, at Cape Girardeau (Missouri).
